► on the loop out

MANY of hip hop's most gifted artists credit music with helping them escape a life of crime. The Wu-Tang Clan's RZA, raised in dire poverty, is today a Hollywood heavyweight and working with Quentin Tarantino.

Now some young Victorians have teamed with mentors from Australia's hip hop ranks as part of the worthy Underground Loop program. Their music will surprise.

Tonight DTR Click (above) — whose members are drawn from Maori, African and South American backgrounds — launch the Underground Loop double CD at the Crom. The gig is all-ages.
